HAROLD BALLIN PLAYS FULL FOR 'HARVARD' TEAM

Tigers Try Whole Repertory Preparing for Game with Crimson

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 8 .- To-day was the first time that Harold Ballin, captain of the Princeton team in 1914. ever played on a "Harvard" team.

A heavy backfield man was wanted for the "Harvard" scrub team, and Ballin was impressed into service and played fullback for a quarter of an hour. His team had little luck in getting through the 'varsity in spite of his manful attacks.

On the whole, the first string men played much better than they have been playing for the last few weeks. The scrub team lined up against them was a pretty weak one, but at that it failed to gain a bit of ground. A long scrimmage was held with the second team, and the whole varsity repertoire of plays were tried with good results in

There was not the locse handling of the ball and the "what's-the-use" kind of playing which has been so evident during the last few weeks. Thomas is being used in the 'varsity backfield, and his energy seems to be communicated to all the players in front of him. Both Tibbett and Brown were given a day off. Tibbett was not on the field, but Brown watched the practice from a blanket on the sidelines.

Funk Goes to Backfield

George Funk is not at end any long er. For several days he has been playing in the backfield. He was put against the second team to-day, when the ball was about twenty yards in front of the goal posts, and from in front of the goal posts, and from there he kicked several placements squarely over the bar. His kind of fight is the thing that Princeton needs to beat Harvard and Yale.

Captain Hogg was kept out of the game to-day and directed the play of the men from the side lines. Snake Ames has not been in scrimmage thin week, but he will be able to take Eddy's place against Harvard on Saturday if necessary. Comey will have next choice after Ames.

Plays which will be used for the first time against Maine on Saturday were rehearsed, and after the team had run through a lively signal drill, just be-fore the close of the workout, the men were sent into the blocking and tackling machines.

The cadets of the Cullum Hall eleven, which is winning all its games this year, took White Plains High School into camp on an adjoining griding by a score of 20 to 7.

To-day the squad was given a solid session of work with the charging machine and bucking strap, and then sent into a strenuous hour's session of scrimmage with the freshman eleven. The first year team started in with a rush by recovering a blocked kick on the 'varsity 9-yard line and rushing the ball to within two feet of the goal line. Here the 'varsity held its opponents for downs, and was not again threaton the big red team for the middle short session of signal practice.

The Worth of Systems

"Yale," writes W. O. Waters, jr., "has been charged with having poor material for the last few years. It has been implied that the fame of the di stars, Shevlin, Kilpatrick, Coy, Andrus, etc., was due to themselves matter of fact, their fame is due to the Yale football system, which protest them. Under a decadent system no star will shine for posterity.

"Yale football decay began to show in 1911. Later on they forget entropy the old Yale precepts of line play, following the ball and tackling. Tale is her defeats lacked men. Have you ever seen a better end than Bemeinter! A better centre than Ketcham? Better possibilities than Lefty Plins, Page Ainsworth and Knowles? Yale has no better men to-day; she is murely po ting back to her old system. From all I have seen and heard the Yale line taking its stance as a Yale line should-facing their opponerts with bead one feet planted firm, charging with the ball, realizing that "it is more blessed b

Which Is True Enough

It is systems, after all, which make stars, not stars that make system Most people will never believe this. The popular idea is that a few stars will make any system work. But unless the system is there to give the star to chance, to develop his skill and increase his capacity or capability, her will Harvard reached the top by picking up where Yale left off. If Yale be stuck to her old system these last few years would have produced battles be youd all imagining rather than scores of 86 and 41 to 0.

To get the idea, imagine a Harvard team with Brickley, Mahan, Barbrid Bradlee, Pennock, etc., facing a Yale eleven with a Gordon Brown, a Jin Louis

This doesn't mean, of course, that a system with poor material is going to get very far. It won't. But neither will the material minus the system and in front.
